U.S. ZIONISTS CHARGE U.S. POLICY IS "BEVINIZED"

The American Zionist Emergency Council, in behalf of Zionist organizations in the United States, called for action by President Truman to "undo" the American position in supporting United Nations sanctions against Israel.

In a seathing denunciation of the United States delegation's reversal in Paris to support sanctions against Israel in the event the Jews refuse to withdraw their forces from the Negeb, the Council reminded President Truman of his pledge to carry out the Democratic party's stand on Israel.

Dr. Stephen S. Wise, president of the American Jewish Congress, in a separate statement, also assailed the United States delegation's attitude in Paris and charged that the State Department was accepting the suggestions of the British Foreign Office. The Council, of which Dr. Abba Hillel Silver is president, made the same point.

"We now look to President Truman not only to undo a great injustice but to preserve our country's integrity, which cannot forever survive the repeated assaults upon it perpetrated by cynical international manipulations," the Council statement said.

"The President now has a great opportunity to establish once and for all that his declarations were sincerely meant and carefully considered," the statement added. "We hope he will seize that opportunity."

Charging that the United States delegation's role in the Security Council vote was a "great injustice," the Council asserted: "Today it is clear to the American people that our delegation in Paris is carrying forward a British-engineered program on Israel which is designed to undermine the declared American policy."

The Security Council, by a vote of [illegible] adopted a resolution aimed at the possibility of rigid sanctions against Israel in the event of refusal to evacuate the Negeb area allocated to the Jews under the U. N. partition plan of last November.

The question of President Truman's hand in the matter arose because the Americans were reportedly ordered by him last Friday to drop their support of drastic action against the Jews. The American switch in Paris followed Mr. Truman's election. In Paris it was believed that the American delegation cleared the switch with the White House, according to the New York Herald Tribune.

The American Zionist Emergency Council also charged that the American amendment to the original British-Chinese resolution was intended by "State Department propagandists" to create the impression that the proposal was also in Israel's interest.

"This is an entirely false interpretation by which the sponsors of this move hope to sugar-coat their sinister designs against Israel," the statement said. "Actually, the United States-amended resolution broadens the field of sanctions which the British have been seeking to impose on Israel."

The United States amendment asked for the study of not only the possibility of economic, diplomatic or communications sanctions against Israel but also all other actions the U.N. could undertake. This might also include military actions.

Commenting further on the American delegation's stand, the Zionist Emergency Council said: "The action of the American delegation in Paris is particularly shocking in view of the fact that it follows by a few days the declaration of policy on Israel made by the President of the United States

Adoption Plan To Help Levantine Young

The adoption of seventy-five destitute Levantine Jewish children by American organizations and individuals launched a $2,500,000 program by the Committee for the Forgotten Million, Inc., to aid 150,000 such children, Rabbi William Z. Novick, executive director, announced in New York.

The committee is sponsoring the adoption program to help an estimated 1,000,000 Jews who live in communities on the shores of the Mediterranean. A contribution of $100 enables a person or organization to adopt a child.

The adopted child is cared for at one of the committee's schools in the child's country. The "foster parents" receive a biography of the child, together with a photograph, and may correspond with him and send gifts.

"The conditions under which these children now live are unbelievable," Rabbi Novick said. "In most instances they are worse off than the European D.P.s. Four out of five of these Jews are paupers. Eighty per cent of the children are diseased before the age of five. Because of starvation diets and the filth in which the Jews in Moslem countries live, trachoma, pellagra and tuberculosis take huge tolls."

Rabbi Novick explained that these Jews are descended from the exiles of Palestine who, after the destruction of the First Jewish Temple in 586 B. C. established Jewish communities in the Near East. Others came from Spain when in 1492 they were expelled by the Inquisition. These people are known as Sephardic Jews because they live by a code established

Simple Service [illegible] for Mother

Leaders in American and world Jewry, including prominent New York civic officials, were among the 500 persons who attended a funeral service for Dr. Judah L. Magnes, president of the Hebrew University in Jerusalem, at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, Broadway and 122d Street, in New York.

On a visit to the U. S. since last April, Dr. Magnes died in his suite at the Mayflower Hotel, Central Park West and Sixty-first Street, of a heart ailment, at the age of 71.

The service, which was held outdoors in the quadrangle formed by the main buildings of the seminary, was a simple one, in accordance with the traditional Jewish liturgy. It was conducted jointly by Dr. David de Sola Pool, rabbi of the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue, and Dr. Simon Greenberg, acting president of the seminary. Dr. Louis Finkelstein, president of the institution, who was on leave from his duties, was in attendance.

After Dr. Ernst Simon, close friend of Dr. Magnes who is completing a year as exchange professor at the seminary, and several students finished the recitation of prayers at the side of the coffin, Dr. Greenberg opened the service with the reading in Hebrew from the Fifteenth and the One Hundred and Twenty-first Psalms.

Dr. Pool then read from the Twenty-third Psalm and followed

Wise Condemns Light Sentence

In condemning the commutation into four years' imprisonment of the life sentence imposed on Ilse Koch, widow of the former commandant of the Buchenwald death camp, who had been convicted as a war criminal in her own right, Dr. Stephen S. Wise, president of the World Jewish Congress, sent the following telegram to James V. Forrestal, United States Secretary for Defence:

"The World Jewish Congress expresses its gravest concern over the commutation of the life sentence, imposed by an American Military Court on Ilse Koch, to four years of imprisonment after she was found guilty of the most inhuman offences against concentration camp inmates. The World Jewish Congress is alarmed not only over this particular instance of leniency to one who committed

U.S. Zionist Head Denies Funds Used To Dominate Structure Of Palestine

Dr. Emanuel Neumann, president of the Zionist Organization of America, asserted in New York that funds raised in America for Palestine "are not allocated here but remitted to head offices in Jerusalem to be disbursed in accordance with the budgets of the World Zionist Organization and the Jewish Agency for Palestine."

The Zionist leader's statement was in reply to a charge by Henry Montor, who had resigned as executive vice-chairman of the United Palestine Appeal, that funds raised were being used "as a lever with which to change or dominate the social structure of Palestine." Mr. Montor also had charged that the collection of funds was controlled by the ZOA, says Irving Spiegel, in the New York Times.

In a four-page statement, Dr. Neumann said that of three major partners constituting the United Jewish Appeal campaign for $250,000,000 — the Joint Distribution Committee, the United Service for New Americans and the United Palestine Appeal—the latter "has the broadest base of democratic representation." He added:

"Its governing bodies are neither hand-picked nor self-perpetuating, but are composed of representatives of all Zionist groups in the United States representing millions of American Jews."

It was then that Dr. Neumann emphasized that funds raised for Palestine were not allocated in America but remitted to Jerusalem.

"These budgets," he said, "are determined and adjusted from time to time by a standing budget and finance commission in Jerusalem, all of whose members are Israelis without a single American Zionist serving on that body.

"If, as Mr. Montor intimates, the funds were used or would be used 'as a lever with which to change or dominate the social [illegible] Palestine,' [illegible] all parties in Israel are in strict accordance with proportionate strength. American Zionists have no power over that commission."

Dr. Neumann's statement then cited a resolution adopted by the executive committee of the United Palestine Appeal on October 14, requesting Mr. Montor "to retract in writing the specific allegations" contained in his letter of resignation. Mr. Montor's resignation was submitted on September 10 and was accepted by the executive committee on October 21.

"Mr. Montor not only failed to comply with the terms of the resolution," Dr. Neumann continued, "but proceeded to stimulate and organize dissident groups in opposition to the UPA while he was still a highly paid official of that body—a course of conduct which the UPA was bound to regard as disloyal and not to be tolerated. It consequently accepted his resignation, involving also his resignation as executive vice-chairman of the United Jewish Appeal."

Mr. Montor has been associated with the UPA and its affiliates for twenty-two years. He said that he had not submitted his resignation to the United Jewish Appeal but would continue in that post until the end of the year.

Dr. Neumann said that on October 21 the UPA's executive committee, of which he is a member, decided to include on its governing bodies representatives of Jewish communities and welfare organizations throughout the country "to the extent of one-third of the governing bodies, the other two-thirds to be designated by the two constituent funds of the UPA, the Keren Hayesod (Palestine Foundation Fund) and the Jewish National Fund, which are the principal beneficiaries."

The Zionist official said that the subcommittee of the UPA has been appointed to implement this plan and has already initiated discussions with the representatives of community federations and welfare funds.

Mr. Montor said "No matter what has been said, I am not engaging in any personal recriminations," and added:

"The central idea which concerns me is the involvement of the whole of American Jewry in the tasks of building up Israel to receive the maximum number of Jews. If a partnership can be created on the broadest possible scale between all the Jews in America and the people of Israel, that would be one of the greatest accomplishments since the founding of the State of Israel and would do much to strengthen the

Asks Medical Program Fund

Typhoid has been wiped out almost completely in Israel, Dr. Eli Davis, deputy director for the Hadassah Medical organization in the Holy Land, reported. Because the water supply and plumbing still are serious problems, he ascribed the disappearance of the disease since the partition of Palestine to inoculation of all citizens and the end of vegetable purchases from the Arabs, who used disease-bearing fertilizer.

At a news conference in Hadassah national headquarters, 1819 Broadway, New York, Dr. Davis also outlined the organization's new medical program in Israel, for which he came to the U.S. to ask $2,500,000. It includes tuberculosis control, infant welfare, preventive medicine and rehabilitation of immigrants. Medical services will be available equally to Christians, Jews and Moslems, he declared.

Although Hadassah Hospital on Mount Scopus has not been abandoned, danger of transporting food through a barrage of Arab snipers has forced doctors to move facilities down to Jerusalem, he explained. Hadassah also maintains fifty-two health stations in Israel.

After addressing the thirty-fourth annual Hadassah convention in Atlantic City, Dr. Davis will discuss plans for building an undergraduate medical school in Israel with the Hadassah medical reference board and officials of the Hebrew University. He said that the Israeli Government had recalled all 360 medical students now in foreign schools. They will complete their training in Israel under the direction of Hadassah medical personnel.

Was Noted Baseball Official

Harry M. Grabiner, vice-president of the world champion Cleveland Indians, died in Chicago, Ill., in St. Luke's Hospital. His age was 57.

It was in mid-December of 1945 that Harry Mitchell Grabiner had quit baseball—supposedly for good—after forty-one years of steady devotion to the Chicago White Sox. But he was the type of man who couldn't quit cold in idleness.

Recognized as one of the most astute individuals in the game, Mr. Grabiner, like many another baseball executive, started at the bottom rung of the business. He began by selling pop, peanuts and scorecards at 13.

In his spare time he ushered, swept out the front office, filled the inkwells and generally brought himself to the attention of his idol, the late Charles A. Comiskey.

Mr. Grabiner, who served briefly as travelling secretary of the White Sox in 1908, kept climbing in the Comiskey organization to become assistant secretary in 1911, and secretary in 1915. Then in 1922, at the age of 31, he was made vice-president and general manager of the club.

J. Louis Comiskey, son of Charles, gave Mr. Grabiner almost full reign upon taking over the American League club in 1931 and, before his death in 1939, specified in his will that Mr. Grabiner be retained as general manager.

Mr. Grabiner was a true White Sox fan from start to finish. Daily while the club was on the road, he would call sports departments of Chicago newspapers to learn inning-by-inning, or play-by-play, results of its game. It was the same even when the White Sox were battling it out for seventh place.

It was difficult for such a man to remain away from the game he loved. His retirement was short-lived, for in June of 1946 he was named vice-president of the new world champion Cleveland Indians when William L. Veeck Jr. purchased the club for a price reported between $1,750,000 and $2,000,000.

The name Veeck was not new to Grabiner. In 1929, he and the late William L. Veeck, president of the Chicago Cubs from 1919 to 1933, introduced major league baseball to Chicago youngsters. They admitted school children to White Sox and Cub games free of charge three times a week.

Although comparatively young Mr. Grabiner ranked third—behind Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics and Clark Griffith of the Washington Senators — in years of service in the league.

At the bedside when Mr. Grabiner died were his wife, Dorothy; his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Friedlob, of Chicago, and a brother, Joseph.

Surviving also are another brother, Sol, and three sisters, Mrs. Fannie Simon, Mrs. Etta Wolf and Mrs. Sophie Stein. Mrs. Friedlob, before her marriage, was a Hollywood actress known as June Travis.

THE PROBLEM OF AGE

As science masters disease, the average life span of Canadians lengthens and the problem of what to do with the increasing number of aged becomes greater. Contrary to popular belief, older workers are usually as efficient as younger people; they are not more prone to accidents and their skill and experience are valuable assets to modern industry.

PROSPERITY TONES DOWN ANTI-SEMITISM

An analysis of current political campaigns by the Anti-Defamation League of Bnai Brith has shown "a marked decrease in the use of anti-Semitism" compared with 1940 and 1944, it was reported in the findings of a nation-wide survey made public in New York by Supreme Court Justice Meier Steinbrink, national chairman of the League.

"Also there are fewer known anti-Semites seeking political office this year than at any time since before the war," the report said. "The comparative absence of anti-Semitic activity in the current campaigns is primarily due to the fact that there is economic prosperity and no national or international problems which are sharply and deeply dividing Americans."

Current political issues listed as having "volatile elements" include the struggle for recognition of Israel, the Displaced Persons Act, the Nuremberg trials and Communism. In the latter connection the report declared that "for the past decade anti-Semites have attempted to equate Communism with Judaism."

PAINLESS PROTECTION

The inoculation procedure employed in immunization against the common childhood diseases is about as painful as a mosquito bite and ordinarily the reaction, if any, consists of nothing more than a bit of local swelling. There is no cheaper protection than immunization. It can be done by your family doctor or at a free immunization clinic. It is a safeguard against the costs of a serious illness. It saves money, parental worry, time lost through illness and perhaps life itself.

Sees Cooperation As Need For DP Aid

Full cooperation between communities and agencies of all denominations dealing with incoming displaced persons is essential to make the new Displaced Persons Act effective, Mrs. Louis Broido, chairman of a conference on displaced persons sponsored by the United Service for New Americans, declared in New York.

Six hundred representatives of agencies took part in day and evening sessions of the conference at the Russell Sage Foundation. The resettlement program for displaced persons was discussed.

Harry N. Rosenfield, a member of the United States Displaced Persons Commission screening displaced persons aboard for entry into the country, said the act was "unique in American immigration practice." He termed it "as much a resettlement law as an immigration law." Its difference lies, he noted, in that "it is interested in where they are going, what they are going to do when they get there and where they are going to live."

Outlining the provisions of the act that only those displaced persons may enter the country for whom guarantees have been provided that they will have job opportunities and housing facilities, Mr. Rosenfield said such assurances would come from three sources—relatives of the displaced persons, prospective employers and voluntary agencies, such as United Service for New Americans, Church World Service and War Relief Service of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

The assurances received on the DP's, Mr. Rosenfield asserted, constitute "a thrilling exhibition of the heart of America at its best."

Citing the last International Refugee Organization reports on 340,000 of 590,000 DP's in IRO camps abroad, he noted that 100,000 were skilled workers. Besides these, he pointed out that "there are more farmers than any other single occupation among the men," with domestic service ranking first among the women.

Says British Jews Are Too Inbred

A young Jewish scientist says his studies in Jewish marriage have convinced him that Jewish in-breeding in England has produced a larger proportion of geniuses and of persons of low mentality than is true in the non-Jewish community. The report was made by Gordon Haskell, a British geneticist, in an interview with the Jewish Chronicle, of London.

Haskell said he had studied closely the question of heredity in relation to Jews but that he had not published his findings "for fear of offending the susceptibilities of the Jewish religious authorities."

"Speaking purely from a scientific point of view, I am convinced that, so far as Anglo-Jewry is concerned, there is far too much in-breeding to be healthy." Haskell said.

"This Jewish communal in-breeding, found in every Jewish center in this country produces great extremes, a bigger proportion of genius and a larger number of persons of low mental ability than in the non-Jewish community," he said. "It also makes for the greater prevalence of such diseases as diabetes."

Haskell said the theoretically proper solution — a wiser selection of marriage strains — involved the issue of inter-marriage, which he did not advocate because of the dangers of loss of Jewish identity in children of such marriages.

As a staunch Zionist, he said, he looked for a solution to Israel "where Jews from all quarters of the globe will meet and marry and produce a new and vastly improved stock."

Haskell is a ranking scientist, a member of the staff of the John Innes Horticultural Research Station in England. Haskell made it clear he was speaking only of the densely-knit, homogeneous Jewish population of England, which has had few additions of outside Jewish stock except for the few thousand refugees taken in from Europe in recent years.

Though it is generally accepted that Jews are in no sense a biological stock, such a Jewish population as that of England, without fresh additions from other countries regularly, might take on the aspects of a biologically uniform group, particularly if there was a strong ban on inter-marriage.

Recent studies have indicated that the ban against marrying outside the Jewish community is very strong.

Why Israel Seeks The Negeb

By Ruth Gruber, In The New York Herald Tribune

The Bernadotte Report, to the Jews who built settlements on the desert of Palestine, is a 1948 version of the rape of Czechoslovakia. The Jews were shocked and deeply grieved by the assassination of the Swedish count. They knew, only too well, how his death would be blamed upon the whole country, instead of upon a handful of misguided zealots. But to every Jew who had struggled to find water in the eroded soil of the Negeb, to every Jew who had fought his way to Israel through the concentration camps of Dachau and Buchenwald and Cyprus, Count Folke Bernadotte was Runciman's successor.

Exactly ten years ago, Runciman went to Prague. On the altar of peace, he tried to persuade the Czech people to cede the Sudetenland to Hitler, a capitulation which Churchill denounced as "a complete surrender of the Western democracies to the Nazi threat of force." Count Bernadotte hoped, too, to avoid a war in Palestine by persuading the Jews to cede the Negeb to the Arabs. The aggressor, in both countries, was rewarded.

The Sudeten Germans, directly aided by Hitler, had been staging rebellions against the democratic Czech government. They were repaid for their intransigeance and aggression by appeasement. The Arabs had announced at Lake Success that they were invading Palestine. They had openly declared that they would not respect the United Nations decision to establish a Jewish state in a partitioned Palestine. Now they were to be rewarded for their intransigeance and aggression. The Sudetenland was given to Germany; the Negeb was to be given to the Arabs.

The war which raged over Hill 113, the war in the northern Negeb, is proof again that peace is a derivative of appeasement in grammar but not in politics. The Jews who fought in World War II learned that lesson well. To them the Bernadotte Report made a virtue out of aggression, and offered a consolation prize for defeat.

To be sure, they were pleased that Count Bernadotte and Dr. Ralph Bunche, who was his chief aide in the writing of the report, and who is now acting mediator, began with the premise that Israel exists. They were pleased that the report gave them the western Galilee which they had already won in the battle, and thus secured their frontiers against Syria and the Lebanon. But to deprive them of the one area of the country in which they could really develop seemed to them an immoral and sinister act. A young republic, four months old, was to be broken up with the consent of the United Nations.

Yet it was the United Nations itself that had created that republic. It was the one tangible body into which the U. N. had breathed the breath of existence. They made that republic small, 5,678 square miles. Now it seemed to the Jews that Count Bernadotte and Dr. Bunche were about to betray the very thing the U. N. had built. Betrayal of Israel, to the Jews who had shed blood for Israel, means a self-betrayal of the U. N.

Israeli officials with whom I talked in Tel Aviv and in Paris told me there were seven reasons why they believed the Negeb should not be taken from them.

1. The Negeb is the only area where they can resettle the million new immigrants they plan to bring into the country within the next decade. Israel is built, as perhaps no country in history except the United States, upon the concept of immigration. Already some 6,000 to 10,000 refugees are being brought in each month. Yet the Bernadotte Report cuts about 3,800 square miles from the state of Israel, room which is crucially needed for these new settlers. Israel becomes a state of 2,180 square miles — the size of Delaware, the second smallest state in the United States. Yet Delaware has a population of 266,505. Israel already has 800,000 Jews, some 60,000 Arabs and plans for another million immigrants.

2. The Bernadotte-Bunche Report gives the Negeb to Trans-Jordan, which already has an area of 34,570 square miles. With the 3,800 square miles of the Negeb, Trans-Jordan expands to 38,370 square miles, and becomes nineteen times larger than Israel. Yet Trans-Jordan has merely 340,000 people in that vast area, compared to Israel's 800,000. Obviously Trans-Jordan does not need the Negeb as a land reserve; Israel does.

3. The Jews have cultivated potash plants and exploited the area around the Dead Sea economically. The potash plant which the Jews built here at a cost of millions of dollars was the largest potash plant in the British Empire. There is a potash hunger in the world today. The Jews are convinced they can continue to develop potash and turn to other mineral and scientific resources. They have conquered the desert — while the desert for hundreds of years has defeated the Arabs, keeping their nomads in hunger and poverty.

4. The American Lowdermilk plan for a Jordan Valley Authority similar to the T. V. A. which envisions the cultivation not only of Israel's desert but of the whole Middle East, makes it imperative, the Jews believe, that they who have technical know-how remain in the area of the Dead Sea.

5. Dr. Chaim Weizmann, President of Israel's State Council, visualizes Israel's role as the Switzerland of the Middle East — a processing state, importing raw materials, processing them and exporting them as finished products. The Negeb is the area where industries can be built.

6. If they are to become another Switzerland, then they must keep the port of Aqaba as their outlet to South Africa, their window to the markets of the Orient.

7. No one knows if there is oil in large quantities in the Negeb. But if there is, the Jews point out that every business man knows that you shouldn't put all your eggs in one basket, so you shouldn't put all your oil in one people. They recall that in 1941 the Iraqis joined the Nazis in a revolt against Britain.

For these reasons at least the Jews of Israel feel that they cannot accept the Bernadotte Report. It is safe to predict that they will not submit to the role of becoming the Czechoslovakia of 1948.

J.W.B. LEADER HEADS THREE-FAITH GROUP

President Truman named a committee on religious and moral welfare and character guidance in the armed forces to help provide a healthy spiritual and recreational life for servicemen while they are not on duty. Frank L. Weil, of New York, a lawyer and president of the National Jewish Welfare Board, was named chairman.

The committee consists of representatives of the three principal religious faiths and civic and educational leaders. The executive order setting up the group called for coordination of official armed forces activities for servicemen with the efforts of local communities.

Plans for a committee for this purpose were first announced by Mr. Truman on Sept. 16, on the basis of the report from his Advisory Commission on Universal Military Training. With the appearance of thousands of teen-agers in older service units, the National Military Establishment is known to have felt that special efforts should be made to meet the needs of the younger recruits.

The new committee was instructed by the President to confer and advise with the Secretary of Defense and the Secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force for the purpose of carrying out the policy of the Executive order. Local communities were invited to begin plans now for the resumption of social welfare and religious activities "for the benefit of the members of the armed forces in their vicinity during off-duty hours."

Dr. D. A. Jesserun Cardozo, Rabbi of the Congregation Mikveh Israel, Philadelphia, Pa., recently took part in a special celebration honoring the ascension of Queen Juliana to the Netherlands throne. Representing the Jewish faith, Rabbi Cardozo was one of the principle speakers at the ceremony. The Catholic, Protestant and Mohammedan faiths were also represented. The celebration was held at the Dutch Club in New York. Born in Amsterdam, Holland, Rabbi Cardozo was president of the Netherlands Jewish Society during the late war and received a knighthood from Queen Wilhelmina. Rabbi Cardozo was at one time Executive Director of the Central Sephardic Community and is still active in its Assembly of Delegates.

Pioneer Women's Organization Looks Around With Pride

A record budget of $1,000,000 for the coming year, to carry on an expanding program of social services for immigrant women and children coming into Israel, has been announced by Pioneer Women, the Women's Labor Zionist Organization of America, upon its twenty-third anniversary, just celebrated, coordinating its efforts with the Working Women's Council of Israel, better known by it's Hebrew name, the Moatzat Hapoalot. Pioneer Women has to its credit a growing network of children's homes, immigrant centers, agricultural training farms, vocational schools and other institutions in Israel from Galilee to the Negev.

Setting as its goal the building of twenty-five children's homes, the organization has within a two-year period erected seventeen and laid the cornerstone for the eighteenth this past summer at Petach Tikvah. Many branches of Pioneer Women have undertaken the construction of these institutions as special projects, including New York, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago, Canada, Boston, Dallas, St. Louis, Milwaukee, and Mexico City.

During 1948, the sum raised for the Moatzat Hapoalot was over $800,000. Pioneer Women also contributed $250,000 for the Child Rescue Fund, $200,000 to the Jewish National Fund, $200,000 to the United Jewish Appeal and $150,000 to Histadrut, a total of more than $1,600,000 in all, a phenomenal sum raised through the efforts of 30,000 women, most of them with middle-class incomes.

Ninety percent of the budget of the Moatzat Hapoalot is derived from Pioneer Women. The children's homes — most of them kindergartens and day nurseries — are for the children of working mothers, and since practically all the women of Israel work, these centers are indispensable for the [illegible] of normal, happy [illegible]dren. The agricultural training farms provide young people with a knowledge of scientific farming, tree planting, fruit growing, etc. During the war with the Arabs, one of these farms was turned over to the government to train officers of Chan, the Women's Auxiliary Army.

At the sewing schools and vocational centers, immigrant women are taught trades. In the immigrant camps, new arrivals are housed, and fed, and skillfully rehabilitated. They are given psychological tests to determine their aptitudes and skills before being trained for useful occupations.

The emergency of war has created many additional uses for funds —evacuation centers have been set up, medical supplies purchased, food provided for soldiers, bereaved families cared for. When there was an urgent call for clothing for newly-born infants arriving in Israel from DP camps and from Cyprus, Pioneer Women organized a linen and layette drive. Within five months, from May to September, it sent over 50,000 pounds of infants' and children's clothing to Israel. Much of it was newly purchased, and many of the layettes were made by hand by the members. At the warehouse in New York, to which all the articles were sent, volunteers sorted and packed these articles for shipment overseas.

Pioneer Women came into being in 1925 because a group of colonists in a suburb of Jerusalem needed $500 to dig a well. Rachel Yanait, one of the colonists, who is now the wife of Ben Zvi, president of the Vaad Leumi, wrote to a friend in the United States for a loan. This appeal found its way into the Yiddish newspapers and $1,000 was raised. Touched by this letter, seven women met in New York to discuss ways and means to assist the pioneers of Palestine. This was the nucleus of Pioneer Women. Almost simultaneously, groups were organized in Philadelphia and Newark for the same purpose.

The purposes of Pioneer Women are three-fold — to assist the women and children of Israel, to stimulate Jewish culture and education in America, and to support social and progressive legislation. The organization has 30,000 members in the United States, Canada and Mexico. Recently branches were organized in Argentina and Brazil. Sister organizations have also been formed this year in England and in France. There are in all 369 clubs on the North American continent.

A concerted drive by the eight HIAS (Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society) offices in the United States has been undertaken to acquaint immigrants with their privileges in regard to acquiring citizenship in the United States. Isaac L. Asofsky, Executive Director of the Society, announces that since January, 2,580 immigrants have utilized the services of HIAS in filing their applications for citizenship. After their arrival, DPs, and immigrants from countries other than Germany, Austria and Italy, eagerly seize the opportunity to apply for citizenship and do so with the minimum of possible delay. The work of assistance in Americanization and naturalization is an important function of HIAS, the oldest global migration agency, which conducts classes in Americanization at its Shelter at 425 Lafayette Street, New York. DPs, all of them prospective citizens of the United States, are here instructed in English, and given advice and guidance in American ways, customs, and laws. Many of the students who attend the classes during their residence in the Shelter continue their attendance after leaving the Shelter and taking up residence in homes of their own.

Says Israel Aid Does Not Impugn U.S. Loyalty

Formation of the State of Israel in no way affects the patriotism or loyalty of the Jews in America, according to the Rev. Nelson Glueck, in a sermon in Boston, Mass.

Dr. Glueck, noted archaeologist and president of Hebrew Union College of Cincinnati, spoke at Temple Israel, from the pulpit formerly occupied by the late Rabbi Joshua Loth Liebman. The sermon was broadcast directly to a New England audience, and later was rebroadcast nationally.

Dr. Glueck said that he was unable to see the reason for the "hue and cry and confusion" concerning the loyalty of American Jews interested in the welfare of Israel.

"The citizens of Israel, Jews and non-Jews, are Israelis, and the citizens of these United States are Americans," he declared. "There are no interlocking political rights or obligations between them. The continuing community of interests of ethnic, philanthropic, religious and general cultural nature cannot and must not, compromise the love and loyalty all citizens should entertain for their country.

"We have no intention, or should have no intention, of withholding our support for Jewish endeavors in the State of Israel, just in order to prevent any possible accusation of double or doubtful loyalty. The logic of such timorousness requires inevitably the abandonment of any humanitarian sympathy and social ideal which may chance to be displeasing to some one afflicted with anti-Semitism, or other benighted prejudices."

Dr. Glueck, who spent more than ten [illegible] at Trans-Jordan as an archaeologist, as director of the American School of Oriental Research, and as an adviser to the British and the American intelligence organizations in World War II, said he saw "no insurmountable obstacles preventing Arabs and Jews from dwelling and building together in amity."

Stressing the necessity for peace in Palestine, he continued:

"I firmly believe that because of its geographical, and political and spiritual centrality, much of the hope of our world lies in the Holy Land. And, America, for its own sake, must take the lead in restoring creative peace there.

"It must be a peace of equity and conciliation and mutual confidence, with promise of beneficent permanence, and not the promise of savage conflict and demonic destruction there and in the world at large."

The assassination of Count Bernadotte and Colonel Serota was condemned by Dr. Glueck, who called for relentless pursuit and punishment of the "madmen" who committed the crime.

JWB Publishes Dance Book

To assist Jewish Community Centers and Y. M. - Y. W. H. A.s the National Jewish Welfare Board (JWB) has published the "Jewish Folk Dance Book," by Katya Delakova and Fred Berk, creative dance artists to make it easy to in[illegible] dancing, either as a separate activity or in relation to other aspects of the Center's program, such as music, dramatics, and arts and crafts.

The authors devote the first part of the manual to a resume of influences in the development of the Jewish folk dance and explicit instructions on how to perform each of the Jewish folk dances in vogue today. Words and music follow each complete instruction. Two dance games are also included. The second part of the publication is devoted to a discussion of the wherefore, why and how of youth performances, and to the presentation of three holiday dance scenes. An original feature is the note after each instruction, briefly describing the spirit of the dance.

The cover design, in rose, white and blue, symbolizes the four main influences in the development of the Jewish folk dance: oriental, Slavic, traditional, and American. Dances dealt with in the manual include the: new hora; harmonica; double teherkassia; circle from Sarid; Debka; Rikud Hazugot; Hassidic dance; sher; and dance games. Copies of the "Jewish Folk Dance Book" are available from the Publications Department, National Jewish Welfare Board, 145 East 32nd Street, New York 16, N.Y.

Dr. A. Benchetrit, noted research specialist in leprosy, will soon establish permanent residence in New York. Dr. Benchetrit has spent over twenty years at the leprosaria of Haiti and Venezuela. He has made important discoveries in the battle against the malignant disease. Widely known in Colombia, where he was head of both national and community organizations, Dr. Benchetrit has labored in the fields of public life for the benefit of the Jewish people, and in science for the benefit of humanity as a whole.

SAFETY IN IMMUNIZATION

Mankind has been provided with the tools which can eradicate diphtheria, smallpox and whooping cough. A death from smallpox means neglect of vaccination. The person who dies of diphtheria today has not been adequately immunized. The baby lost through an attack of whooping cough today has very likely received no vaccine protection. It is up to parents and communities to assure the effective use of the protection now available. The cooperation of every citizen is necessary.

EYE IRRITATIONS

Foreign bodies in the eye are irritating and sometimes painful and may cause serious damage. Sometimes the individual himself can remove the foreign body by irrigating the eye with boiled water or boracic acid solution. It should be dropped into the eye at the corner nearest the nose, tilting the head so it will run out the other side. Tears will likely help to remove the particle.

Temple Has Group Within Group

More than 200 young Cleveland, Ohio, couples have joined the Euclid Avenue Temple's Young People's Congregation, believed to be the first junior congregation of its kind, since its organization about two months ago, says the Jewish Post.

Designed as a "congregation within a congregation" the aim of the group, Rabbi Samuel Silwar said, is to integrate the interest of young people into the cultural and religious life of the temple.

The Young People's Congregation is a long-time dream of Rabbi Barnett R. Brickner, who before the war envisaged a small group of young people carrying on in Temple life within the framework of the senior congregation. Semi-autonomous, YPC offers all the benefits of temple membership. It has its own trustees and operations under the by-laws of the 1,700 family senior congregations.

Rabbi Arthur Lelyveld, national director of Hillel Foundations, conducted the opening High Holy Day services for Rosh Hashonah and Yom Kippur, at the First Unitarian church, across the street from the Euclid Avenue Temple. Until a permanent rabbi is installed, Rabbi Brickner and Rabbi Silver will alternate as leaders of the YPC.

Membership is open to confirmants of the temple and their husbands and wives, as well as the sons and daughters of Temple members. Young people with no affiliation or parental ties to a local Reform Temple are also welcome.

Maximum age among couples is 35, with the husband's age the deciding one. Unmarried people 28 to 35 are invited to join the congregation. Annual membership dues are $25 a couple and members are entitled to burial privileges and may enroll their children in the regular temple Sunday school.

Rabbi Silver emphasized that the purpose of the new junior congregation is not to reach the unaffiliated but to reach these children in the regular temple of the senior congregation.

Now Heads Two Schools

Reaffirming his hope that the joint Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati and Jewish Institute of Religion of New York "will become the equivalent of a great university of American Judaism," Dr. Nelson Glueck was installed as president of the institute. He was named to head both schools when they were combined on June 16.

Dr. Glueck, an archaeologist who is president of Hebrew Union College, told 500 persons attending the installation exercises at the institute, 40 West Sixty-eighth Street, that the merger of the two schools "opens up a new chapter of the religious life of American Jewry."

Dr. Stephen S. Wise, president emeritus and founder of the Jewish Institute, urged Dr. Glueck to "make of the institute an ever increasingly effective instrument conjoined with the college" toward the strengthening and advancement of Judaism in America and throughout the world. This, he asserted, was the stated purpose of the merged college-institute. The college was founded in 1875 and the institute in 1922.

Dr. Wise said that neither partisanship nor separatism constituted the base of "Liberal Judaism." He declared that the "genius" of this faith lies "in the universal inclusion of all the household of Israel within the bond of unity under freedom."

Dr. Glueck said in his acceptance address that "in the joining of our two schools into a more effective unit of intensified activities and larger scope, we find an indication of the coming of age of American Jewry.

"The confusions and controversies and lines of demarcation which have fragmentized our forces are giving way to an encompassing circle of related purpose and common goals," he said. He urged that everyone prepare inwardly for the "days of fury that may lie ahead."

Dr. Glueck will be president of both schools until such time as legal incorporation under one name is achieved. The college in Cincinnati has ordained more than 500 rabbis for the Jewish people. The Institute was chartered as a graduate school.

said the project should win wide response because "the greatest source of productivity is the human will to work." Hence, he said, removal of friction should step up productivity.

Former U.S. Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson told the meeting that removing discrimination does not involve making everyone alike, for differences are "the essence of freedom itself." It does [illegible], he said.

Former Governor Herbert H. Lehman told the group that the various religious organizations are "democracy's greatest bulwarks against the menace of foreign anti-democratic ideologies." He said "the religious idea that God is like a father and all people are like brothers in a family, is the essence of democracy."

Charles E. Wilson, president of General Electric Company, presided at the luncheon and Mrs. Mildred McAfee Horton, who resigned as president of Wellesley College, spoke.

The board re-elected its officers, among them Everett R. Clinchy, president, and Charles E. Wilson, president of General Electric; Thomas E. Braniff, president of Braniff Airways, and Roger W. Straus, chairman of the board of American Smelting and Refining Company, co-chairmen.

Approve Huge Budget For Anti-Bias Work

The National Conference of Christians and Jews will expand its work against religious bias in schools and other education media, as well as in industry.

A $3,500,000 budget for the year ending next September 30 was approved at a meeting of the conference's national board of directors in the Waldorf-Astoria, in New York. The figure became the goal for the organization's fund-raising activities. Last year it adopted a budget of $1,500,000 and raised slightly more than that.

The new program includes $150,000 for added work with school systems; $135,000 for production of movies and film strips, and $60,000 for a special effort to stimulate brotherhood along the assembly lines.

Business men applauded the industrial project, in which management and labor committees will work with the conference's staff members, Clarence Francis, chairman of General Food Corporation,

The Book Of Books

What is the Bible? It is not one book but a library of books. The Torah or, strictly speaking, the Five Books of Moses, had already found status as early as 4 B.C.E. The Books of the Prophets were edited in the days of the Second Temple, while the entire canon of the Jewish Bible was codified in the second century of the common era.

The Bible was not written by any one individual or at any one time. It covers a period of nearly a thousand years of Jewish history and Jewish striving, and yet it is one book, because it has one common theme, Israel's encounter with God. It is the spiritual biography of the Jewish people in search of God and the good life.

Now, the Bible being the work of godly men, contains both a divine and human element, and since everything human is imperfect we must not expect to find the preservation of Divine truth in a state of perfection. Divine truth is always the same. The form in which it is represented differs because the medium is human.

The Bible contains allegory and legend. But these embellish great truths nevertheless. They teach morals in picturesque form. For example: There is no grander poetry in all the world than that in the first chapter of Genesis with its pictures of chaos and the creative spirit brooding over the surface of the waters, and the creative word proclaimed, "let there be light," and there was light.

The Hebrew writer was puzzled by the problem of how life came on earth and he fashioned a poetic explanation of the origin of things. The creation stories in Genesis (and there are two different accounts of creation) are legends with a definite ethical lesson. They indicate that God is the Creator, that the world is good, that the Sabbath should be consecrated. "Genesis is not the story of how the world began; it is rather the story of how man began to think about the origin of the world." The Bible makes no claim anywhere that its contents are absolutely binding. The Bible reflects the various environments and ages in which its pages are written.

[illegible] entered the new heavens of its [illegible] because they [illegible] as a text-book of science, a fetish, and what not? Scientific investigation is not in conflict with the Bible but with the dogmas of the Church respecting the Bible. We Jews who gave the Bible understand it best. We have applied Biblical criticism to this book throughout the ages.

The Rabbis say, "The Torah speaks in the language of men." They mean to say that the sometimes repellant anthropomorphisms enjoyed in the Bible are pitiful reproaches to a description of God's attributes which the limitations of the human intellect necessarily impose. The descent of God on the Mount Sinai, the ascent of Moses and Elijah into heaven, says the Talmud, must not be taken literally but in a spiritual sense. The story of the speech-making by the serpent is not to be taken in a material sense but is a prophetic vision.

The Jew created the Bible and kept it alive. But the Bible in turn kept the Jew alive and through this holy book the Jew conquered the world. One should like to speak of the ennobling influence of the Bible on the human race. Wherever and whenever people made this book their guide these took on the way of progress and civilisation and humanitarian idealism.

One should like to speak, too, of the influence of the Bible on the private lives of men and women. Surely this book has been a source of courage to the broken on the highway of life and a source of inspiration and joy to all whoever sought significance and meaning to life. One should like to speak of the literary beauty of the Bible. Who can deny that this book of books is the greatest literary classic in all the world? Translated in over four hundred tongues and dialects, the Bible has not lost its charm and beauty.

The King James version of Scriptures completed in 1611, is a literary masterpiece but is ever dominated by the Hebrew language. Hence it is that so many Hebraisms are common to the English tongue.

One should like to speak also of the ethical power of the Bible. The key word of scriptures is that of righteousness. The prophets in particular were motivated by dead earnestness in bringing home to the people that religious living entails the pursuit of justice and the practice of compassion; that life has a solemn purpose, that of toil and service.

The Bible is an eternally effective book and remains and will remain as long as civilization endures as an ideological, psychological, and literary classic.

We Jews because of the Bible have come to be known as "The People of the Book." We have ever loved the book. Do you recall how in accordance with the old Jewish tradition we have learned to hug and kiss the book! And when these, our holy books, were tattered and torn, it was the common practice to provide even burial for them. Show me another people that ever practiced the kissing of books.

We rejoice to know that in our day the Bible is being rediscovered. A generation ago it was rather neglected. Today we see an extraordinary number of books being published in the biblical field. Any number of new commentaries have come off the press. New commentaries by distinguished scholars are now in the making. It is good that men and women should return to the holy book in these days of perplexity, especially.

The Bible has stood the test of the ages and the man of today who wishes to lead a responsible life must make this holy book his guide and his compass. When in the words of Martin Buber, a generation casts aside responsibility, it neglects the Holy Scriptures. The Bible is the one book through which man learns to unite spirit and the world in which he dwells.

JEWS AND ISRAELI

By Leonard Stein, Of London, England, President, Anglo-Jewish Association

The scarcely veiled suggestion that all Jews everywhere must expect to be held accountable for what happens in Israel must be firmly repudiated. Responsibility for what happens in Israel rests with the Government and people of Israel, for they alone have the power of decision.

For Jews outside Palestine, Israel is an independent foreign State, whose destinies are in its own hands and will be shaped by its own inhabitants. Jews who are not citizens of Israel have no voice in its government, and there can be no question of their sharing responsibility for the conduct of its affairs. The people of Israel, for their part, have, and rightly, made it plain that they desire no such interference.

British, American and other Jews outside Israel are citizens of their own countries, to which they owe sole and undivided allegiance, and not half-citizens of Israel. It would be intolerable if their standing depended on the hazards of an election in Tel-Aviv. On no account must they allow themselves to be manoeuvred into any such position.

This does not mean, far from it, that what happens in Palestine is of no special significance for Jews everywhere. There can be no Jew with a shred of feeling or a spark of imagination who does not ardently desire that Israel may have a secure and prosperous future. It must be the earnest prayer of us all that Israel may be vouchsafed wise guidance, and justify the lofty hopes reposed in it. What is important is that the line of demarcation between the Jews of Israel and Jews who are citizens of other States should be clearly drawn and recognized without ambiguity or equivocation.

by a fifth-century Palestinian rabbi, Joseph Karo.

Noting that the committee already runs sixty-three schools in four countries with an attendance of almost 20,000, Rabbi Novick said, "This is only the beginning. We are trying to reach many more who are virtually unaided by the regular relief organizations." At the schools the traditional Hebrew training is given together with secular studies if teachers are available.

Although the committee has been able to do work in Morocco, Tripolitania, Syria, Iran, Palestine and Italy, it has been unable to gain entrance to Iraq, where there are 100,000 Jews. "Let me emphasize," said the rabbi, "that we are not a political organization. We are trying to raise these people out of their miserable living conditions and that's all."

The goal for funds in New York has been set at $600,000, Rabbi Novick said. The committee was founded in 1946 by Isaac Shalom, of New York; Ezra Teubal, of Buenos Aires, and Joseph Shamah, of Jerusalem.

foundations of that State."

Mr. Montor said that the board of directors of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds —the central association of Jewish welfare funds throughout the United States — adopted in Pittsburgh last month a resolution to resolve the differences of the two opposing factions and to bring about "the immediate launching of the United Jewish Appeal for 1949."

The resolution, Mr. Montor added, included the suggestion that Eliezer Kaplan, Finance Minister of the State of Israel, be invited to America to work out a solution. He said that a special subcommittee appointed by the Council board had approached the Committee of Contributors and Workers and the United Palestine Appeal to work out a solution.

United Palestine Appeal officials said that the resolution did not contain any reference to inviting Mr. Kaplan to America but that a committee had been appointed to continue discussions between the opposing factions.

The Committee of Contributors and Workers was formed in Pittsburgh at the time the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds convened. The committee is headed by Abraham Feinberg of New York, chairman, and Joseph Shulman of Patterson, N.J., secretary, contributors to the United Jewish Appeal. Mr. Montor is a leading member of the new group.

The committee, Mr. Montor said, adopted a resolution saying that "every effort must be made to mobilize pressure upon the United Palestine Appeal so that it shall be reconstructed with adequate representation named by the Jewish communities themselves and with full powers over expenditures in the United States."

Berl Locker, chairman of the Jerusalem section of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, warned in a cablegram against any fund-raising campaign for Israel "apart from the United Palestine Appeal."

The message was addressed to the Jewish Agency in New York and was forwarded to the convention of the United Palestine Appeal in Chicago, Ill. It was read at the closing session of the convention by Dr. Israel Goldstein, retiring general chairman of the UPA.

"Any attempt for independent campaigns for Israel, apart from the United Palestine Appeal," it stated, "is fraught with the greatest danger for our common cause."

In the message was a statement that a copy of the text had been forwarded to Abraham Feinberg, chairman of the Committee of Contributors and Workers, and to Joseph Sulman, the committee's secretary.

The message was read just before the delegates unanimously went on record for inclusion of one-third of Jewish communities and welfare funds throughout the country on the governing bodies of the UPA.

Mr. Locker will soon arrive in the U.S. Dr. Emanuel Neumann, president of the Zionist Organization of America, said that he was coming at the invitation of the American section of the Jewish Agency "to discuss problems of mutual interest."

Dr. Neumann denounced the new Committee of Workers and Contributors in which Henry Montor is most active.

and is in violent contradiction to it."

The statement charged that the delegation attempted to effect a "fait accompli" for the American people, rushing the issue through the Security Council "immediately after the elections."

"Furthermore, the State Department evidently intends that yesterday's action shall serve merely as a prelude to an all-out anti-Israel offensive, both in the Security Council and in the General Assembly," the Zionist Emergency Council added. "It is apparently joining in the British attempt to apply the Security Council resolution not only to the Negeb but to Galilee as well."

Dr. Wise urged that instead of taking sanctions against Israel President Truman should take action against the American "sanctioneers."

"If I might presume to offer counsel to the President of the United States, I would argue that sanctions be taken by him against those officials of the American government who have once again shown that suggestions from British Foreign Secretary Bevin take priority over orders from the President," Dr. Wise said.

"American foreign policy must not be 'Bevinized'," he concluded. "The President of the United States will have the full support of the American people in whatever sanctions he takes against such officials."

with Pentateuchal readings from the Sephardic ritual. Both rabbis continued the recitation of the Scriptures as they followed the coffin to the seminary gates.

Among the former associates of Dr. Magnes who attended were Dr. Nelson Glueck, president of Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion; Dr. Israel S. Wechsler, president of the American Friends of the Hebrew University, and David W. Senator, administrator of the staff of that organization; Dr. Jonah B. Wise, rabbi of the Central Synagogue, and Dr. Mordecai M. Kaplan, principal of the Teachers' Institute at the seminary.

Prominent civic leaders and representatives of organizations with which Dr. Magnes was associated included former Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, Supreme Court Justice Edgar L. Nathan Jr., James Marshall, member and former president of the Board of Education; Edward M. M. Warburg, chairman of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, Eugene Untermyer and Mrs. Felix M. Warburg. Burial was in Shearith Israel Cemetery, Cypress Hill, Brooklyn.

such atrocious acts, but over the fact that this incident further confirms trends which have been apparent for a considerable time, to reduce the number of war crimes trials to a minimum, to discontinue new trials, to reduce sentences imposed by court and to restrict action to isolated cases. Such trends favour those who murdered and exterminated millions of Jews and other people and lend the greatest encouragement to the recrudescence and revival of the forces of darkness in Germany. They render virtually impossible the imperative tasks of democratisation and denazification. The World Jewish Congress earnestly appeals to you to order a thorough investigation of the commutation of this sentence with a view to a possible reversals of the decision in order to assure the deserved punishment of those responsible for unparalleled crimes against humanity."

5,000 Delegates Hear Hadassah Protest To Truman

Mrs. Samuel W. Halprin, national president of Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization of America, appealed to President Truman to curb "two or three willful men" in the United States delegation to the United Nations for supporting the British resolution on Palestine in defiance of his "clear-cut statements reaffirming the Democratic platform on Israel."

In a telegram sent to the President a few hours before the opening session of the thirty-fourth annual Hadassah convention in Atlantic City, N. J., Mrs. Halprin and members of the national board charged that the new resolution "still contains veiled threats of sanctions against Israel." She explained her protest later in an address to 5,000 delegates representing 250,000 Hadassah members in forty-seven states.

Declaring that the Palestine truce was broken before the murder of Count Folke Bernadotte, Mrs. Halprin said the British resolution would reward Arab aggression in the Negeb.

"The United Nations have accepted the armies of aggression as partners to the truce and have placed them on an equal footing with the defense forces of Israel, which alone are seeking to implement the United Nations decision of November 29 setting up a Jewish state," she declared.

In a broadcast to the convention from Tel Aviv, Dr. Walter Eytan, director general of the Israel Ministry of Foreign Affairs, reported that in the last two weeks, new settlements had been established in the Negeb, "the southern part of Israel, ours by decision of the United Nations and by the strength of our own right."

Dr. Eytan described the pioneering effort by young Israelis "to develop the Negeb for the thousands and the thousands of Jews who are coming down here to make their home." Because many settlers had come from the United States, he asked Hadassah and other voluntary organizations in America to continue their personal and financial support of Israel.

Direct peace negotiations between Arabs and Israelis were urged by Eliahu Epstein, special representative of Israel to Washington, and Dr. Nahum Goldmann of New York, member of the executive of the world Zionist organization.

Although the Arabs rebuffed past efforts of peace talks, made by Israel "in the midst of the most bitter fighting," Mr. Epstein declared, "we still hope, however, that the Arabs will realize that their hope for the future lies in reaching a peaceful settlement with us by direct negotiation and not in waiting for any imposed solution."

Dr. Goldmann, who flew from Paris to speak at the convention, emphasized that the United Nations could no nothing decisive with regard to Israel's fate. He is political adviser to the Israeli delegation at the United Nations.

Saying the United Nations had not yet become "a really effective instrument of law and order in international affairs," he added that it was "still of great value as an international platform for discussion; but as long as things remain what they are, great and decisive controversial issues will probably best be solved outside it."

Dr. Goldmann emphasized that boundary questions would be settled only by direct on-the-spot talks between Jews and Arabs. "All the United Nations can do is hasten the process," he asserted.

A financial report at the afternoon session by Mrs. Elliot F. Glassberg of New Rochelle, N.Y., showed that $8,907,932 had been raised by Hadassah in the last twelve months. It is the largest sum ever collected in the U.S. for Hadassah medical, child welfare, education, feeding, refugee youth and land projects in Israel.

A memorial tribute was made to Dr. Haim Yasaky, director of the Hadassah medical organization, and seventy-six Hadassah Hebrew University doctors, nurses, hospital workers and technicians who were slain in an Arab attack on their medical convoy on April 13. The service was led by Mrs. David De Sola Pool of New York, former national president of Hadassah.
